THE REGENERATION PROCESS

The regeneration process is the way that our body repairs itself at the cellular level. It's a fascinating process, that evolves the releasing of stem cells from the bone marrow into the bloodstream to target the organs in need. This leads to repaired skin, tissue, organs, hair, and ultimately a feeling of youth and vitality. As we age, our body's ability for regeneration declines. Our cells become less proficient at repairing these major issues, and our telomeres begin to shorten.

THE POWER OF STEM CELLS

Stem cells are a type of cell that has the ability to develop into any type of cell needed within the body. They can become epithelial cells, nerve cells, connective tissue cells, or any other kind needed. This is why stem cells are the key to the regeneration process.

Over the years stem cells have gained a vast popularity, and due to its wonderful abilities to heal, stem cell therapy has become extremely expensive and unobtainable.

WHAT ARE TELOMERES?

Telomeres are the endcaps of chromosomes. They play a vital role in the life of a cell, for it protects its DNA and allows the cell to replicate and function properly. As time progresses, telomeres begin to shorten, causing the cell to die and the body to age.
